

Anti-Duhring – Karl
Marx with Freidrich
Engels (1867)
By Karl Marx

- I. Senses and How we are Free
- II. Celebrations
- III. Happiness

I want there to be such moments of celebration that it is common. As common and as daily,
the senses awaken.

I mean such celebration, that we are free. Freedom for all,
and such freedom.

Be dialectical – just be interested in celebrations and happiness.

I mean happiness,
flowing people in film
glamour all walking
with you.
